Church as a Body-Connection Compound

Each local body or connection is simple:

- A local body can be an individual, a family, a cell or a big group of fellowship.
- Each local body is connected by other local bodies in the network.
- The in-net connections are initiated by common key members among certain local bodies, by so, each local body should have at least one key member who is closely related to the connected local bodies.
- Each local body could have out-net connections (local or global) reflecting the specific local needs.

Resulting body-connection compound is organic:

- Connections are all kinds of remote activities backed by good relationships.
- Church as Kingdom
= Simple elements (local bodies) + bonds (global connections)
= Organic compound
- Strong local bodies + Strong connections = Strong church

Church is locally simple and globally organic, which

- is organic as life compound
- grows by herself
- is de-centralized
- has one and only one center - the Lord Jesus Christ

(John 4:21,23,24) (Matthew 18:15-20) (John 15:1-8)
